

Supporting Parents
Supporting Children

Introduction

The *Fred O'Connell NPC Innovation Award recognises NPC member parent associations who have worked towards innovative partnership between schools and parents that supports children in the last academic year.

The work conducted by the member PAs must be in line with the NPC vision where it wants to see an Ireland where every child has the opportunity to reach their full potential.

The Award

NPC has created this award to recognise member Parent Associations for their excellent work in the space of parental involvement in the school community and also to inspire other PAs to think differently and work effectively. And so to recognise the effort, NPC has three prizes for the top 3 innovative member Parent Associations and their work in the last academic year. It is as follows:

The winner will receive €500 in prize money, a plaque, engraved with the name of their Parents' Association and the year it was won. They will also receive a free year's membership to NPC. In addition NPC will have a larger plaque that will be presented to the winner but will be kept in the NPC office. This plaque will be engraved with the winner's name year on year to serve as a record of all the winners of the Award.

* Fred O' Connell was involved with NPC in the early years of the organisation. Fred was the first paid employee of NPC. He also served as Chairperson and Vice Chairperson of NPC. He believed strongly that parents have a vital role to play in their child's education. This award is in honour of Fred.

First developed by Joyce Epstein and collaborators in the early 1990s, the Framework of Six Types of Involvement, it is one of the most influential models in the field of school, family, and community engagement and partnership.

“The way schools care about children is reflected in the way schools care about the children’s families. If educators view children simply as students, they are likely to see the family as separate from the school. That is, the family is expected to do its job and leave the education of children to the schools. If educators view students as children, they are likely to see both the family and the community as partners with the school in children’s education and development. Partners recognize their shared interests in and responsibilities for children, and they work together to create better programs and opportunities for students.”-
Dr.Joyce Epstein, “School/Family/Community Partnerships” ”

Dr. Joyce Epstein’s six themes of parental involvement, the keys to successful school, family and community partnerships:

1. Parenting

Assist families in understanding child and adolescent development and in setting home conditions that support children as students at each grade level. Assist schools in understanding families.

2. Communicating

Communicate with families about school programmes and student progress through effective school-to-home and home-to-school communications.

3. Volunteering

Improve recruitment, training and schedules to involve families as volunteers and audiences at the school and in other locations to support students and school programmes.

4. Learning at home

Involve families with their children in learning at home, including homework, other curriculum-related activities, and individual course and program decisions.

5. Decision making

Include families as participants in school decisions, governance and advocacy through the PTA/PTO, school councils, committees, action teams and other parent organisations.

6. Collaborating with the community

Coordinate community resources and services for students, families and the school with businesses, agencies and other groups, and provide services to the community.
